Longford, Tasmania

2026-2027

Brickendon is one of Australia's oldest privately-owned estates dating from 1824 when the first William Archer settled the land. Yearning for the English countryside, he set about developing his land the traditional English way with miles of white flowering hawthorn hedgerows, extensive gardens surrounding the elegant Georgian Homestead and a quaint rustic farming village for the convict workers. Still owned by the same family, this magnificent property is a perfect setting for weddings and receptions and provides the most unique and picturesque country location in Tasmania.

Set amongst a private cottage garden in the historic Farm Village is the most enchanting gothic chapel. Built by convict labour in the 1850's, the Chapel is ideal for small and intimate weddings. With its steep pitched shingle roof, original stained-glass windows and the mellow timbers of the original Huon pine pews, the Brickendon Chapel is the perfect start to your special day. Surrounded by a quaint cottage garden, the Chapel is suitable for up to 35 guests seated or approximately 50 (with some standing).

If you would prefer a garden ceremony, the gardens surrounding the Chapel or the main Gardens both offer picturesque locations. With the backdrop of the 1829 Georgian Homestead, the main gardens feature extensive plantings of old roses, perennials, and 180-year-old exotic trees, providing numerous ceremony options. Each season brings with it a change of colours so no ceremony at Brickendon is the same.

For a reception with a difference, the 1830's Sussex Barn provides a unique canvas for your wedding theme. From vintage and rustic to contemporary and elegant, you have total freedom to create your individual style. From a casual get together to a fully catered silver service wedding reception, the Sussex Barn provides atmosphere and ambience that cannot be found anywhere else. We are very flexible with your personal wishes and look forward to assisting you in making the venue truly yours. This building is suitable for guest numbers from 30 to 140.

In addition to the Sussex Barn, Brickendon has a smaller venue dubbed The Archery. This newly built contemporary farm shed can seat up to 60 guests and opens out on to a landscaped yard, which allows for a casual roaming event through to a formal seated affair. Timber tables and cross backed chairs add to the rustic industrial ambience of The Archery. This space is also ideal for hosting your day-after recovery session.
